Subject: Support, SB-23, Senator Roger Niello

Dear Senator Niello:

The California Chamber of Commerce is writing to express our strong support for SB 23, to encourage corporate donations to California's educational institutions.

Our members are aware that the most important factor influencing long-term prosperity and economic competitiveness is having a workforce that is educated and skilled. SB 23 is an efficient and cost-effective way to reinforce this essential base. This law establishes a strong public-private partnership by offering a 25 percent tax credit for contributions to public schools, community colleges, universities, and scholarship funds. It makes use of investments from the private sector to directly support technology, classroom supplies, and students' access to higher education throughout the state. In order to guarantee budget predictability, this well-crafted bill has a clear annual cap of eight million dollars. Without generating an unlimited financial obligation, it offers a significant incentive for corporate citizenship. Additionally, it gives businesses flexible ways to support their local communities and the pipeline of future talent by permitting donations of both money and necessary tangible resources, such as computer equipment and books.

For these reasons, the California Chamber of Commerce respectfully requests that you firmly support SB 23. The people of California are the state's most valuable resource, and this legislation is a wise investment in its people.

Sincerely,

The California Chamber of Commerce
